Parent Teacher Home Visits is an inexpensive and easily replicated model of family engagement that has been proven to build trust and respect between parents and school staff, instilling cultural competency and increasing personal and professional capacity for all involved. Home visits are voluntary for all and participating teachers and staff are compensated for their time.

The concept behind the Parent Teacher Home Visits is simple. Teachers and family members come together, outside of the school setting, as equal partners, to build trust and form a relationship where they take the time to share dreams, expectations, experiences, and tools regarding the child's academic success. Once a relationship is formed, the partners are mutually supportive and accountable with each other to ensure their student's academic and social success.

Independent evaluations of our home visit efforts show increased student attendance rates, improved school climate, decreased suspension and expulsion rates, and increased student test scores.

Our nonprofit is a 20-year collaboration of our founding members: Sacramento City Teachers Association (SCTA), Sacramento City Unified School District (SCUSD) and Sacramento Area Congregations Together (ACT). This Sacramento-born strategy is recognized as a statewide and national model as other schools and districts look for proven and successful strategies to reach out to all their families.
